The Noah Worcester Dermatological Society’s objective is to nurture a small national dermatological organization characterized by scientific programs of high caliber and close association among its members. The membership is selectively limited to assure intimacy and the high academic standards of the scientific program.

The national Society is named for Noah Worcester, the author of the first American textbook on Dermatology, published in 1845. The first meeting of the Society was held in 1958 and annual meetings have been held each year since that time.

Mission

Education: Provide members with cutting-edge medical education and opportunities to earn CME credit.

Leadership & Mentorship: Noah’s relatively small, close-knit society provides an excellent platform for younger dermatologists to interact with and learn from more experienced, senior colleagues.

Philanthropy: In its 59-year history, Noah has provided grants to most leading medical schools and departments of dermatology to further education and fund skin disease research. The Society also regularly contributes to the Dermatology Foundation, Camp Discovery, and other charitable organizations.

Get to Know Us

The Noah Worcester Dermatological Society (Noah) is a small, unique organization comprised of the most respected and visible thought leaders in dermatology. Since our first Annual Meeting in 1958, Noah has offered our members and industry benefactors exceptional educational programming and the opportunity for physicians to earn continuing medical education (CME) credit. But that’s not what makes our Society special. For our members and industry friends, Noah is a family, and the intimate, collegial atmosphere of our Society is unlike that of any other dermatologic group.

The Best & The Brightest in Dermatology

Noah’s membership is a diverse mix of researchers, private practitioners, clinicians, and academics, who hold some of the most highly visible positions in the dermatologic community, including department chairs, professors of dermatology, American Academy of Dermatology (AAD) officers and board members, and editors of major dermatologic journals.

Noah membership is limited to assure close association among our members and to maintain the high academic standards of our scientific programs. New members are carefully recruited annually by invitation only.

- Number of members: 250
- Average member age: 56 years
- Members in full-time practice: 79%
  - Medical: 70%
  - Surgical: 20%
  - Cosmetic: 10%
- Members who have been AAD officers or directors: 27%
- AAD committee appointments held by Noah members: nearly 400
- Members who have been speakers at AAD: 70%
- Members involved in formal university teaching programs: 64%
- Members who are directors of university teaching programs: 11%
- Members who have published papers in dermatology literature: 91%

Noah Benefactors & Corporate Members

Benefactors and Corporate Members are an important part of the Noah family, and the financial support they provide our Society is critical to the advancement of its mission. Noah members gratefully acknowledge and appreciate industry participation and its efforts to foster programming that helps clinicians and academics meet their professional education needs. Industry friends can support Noah as a “Benefactor” of our Annual Meeting or as a “Corporate Member”.
Unparalleled One-on-One Access to Dermatology Leaders

Noah’s close-knit, familial atmosphere offers a unique opportunity for our industry friends in dermatologically-oriented pharmaceutical and medical device manufacturing companies. Noah benefactors and corporate members enjoy access to the entire range of social and scientific activities of the Society and are treated as family members in the pursuit of Noah’s mission and objectives. This atmosphere creates one-on-one, mutually beneficial working relationships between Noah members and industry partners. This kind of direct access to prominent leaders in dermatology is nearly impossible to find in other, larger dermatologic organizations. Direct benefits for Society benefactors and corporate members include, but are not limited to:

- Full participation in all scientific sessions, social gatherings, and athletic activities for company representatives at Noah’s Annual Meeting.
- Invitation for company representatives to attend our private “Cocktails with Noah” reception, held annually at the American Academy of Dermatology (AAD) Annual Meeting.
- Special recognition in the Annual Meeting on-site program and between lectures and sessions.
- Direct contact with all Noah members in an intimate, collegial setting, both academically and socially, where all are equal in the pursuit of the Society’s mission.
- Participation in our “Salute to Benefactors” reception at our Annual Meeting, an entire evening dedicated to our industry friends and their commitment to Noah’s mission.
- Invitation for company representatives to attend a private reception at the Annual Meeting, hosted by Noah’s officers.

Noah’s 59th Annual Meeting
April 19 - 23, 2017
